HENRY BENEDICT, a manufacturer of Milwaukee, Wis., after large experience in some of the leading companies, says: "The NORTHWESTERN is the BEST company FOR THE POLICY HOLDER now engaged in the business of life insurance."

[A]nother (a prominent business man East) says: "The dividends on my policy have not only increased rapidly from year to year, but have been LARGER THAN IN ANY OTHER COMPANY in which I am or have been insured. I regard the Northwestern as one of the soundest financial corporations, as well as one of the ablest managed life insurance companies in this country, and as such can conscientiously recommend it to the attention of those who desire sound insurance at the lowest attainable cost."

Similar testimony from the highest sources is abundant and more of it will be given to the public.

WASHINGTON.

The Senate Discusses and Passes the Oleomargarine Bill.

SOME IMPORTANT AMENDMENTS.

Congressman Hatch of Missouri, Talks very Harshly about Senator Ingalls—Chances for the River and Harbor Bill.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Senator Miller presented a memorial of the Evangelical alliance of the United States referring to the recent outrages and [illegible] inflicted on Chinamen on the Pacific coast, with a letter from the branch of the alliance in China setting forth the injurious effect of these outrages on Americans and Christians [illegible]. He thoroughly indorsed the sentiment embodied in the memorial and the letter, and the memorial were read in full and referred to the committee on foreign relations.

THE OLEOMARGARINE BILL.

At 10 [illegible] the senate resumed consideration of the oleomargarine bill, and was addressed by [illegible] in opposition to the bill.

[illegible] report of the bill [illegible]

[illegible] He assumed that the most latitudinarian construction of the constitution would not claim for congress any power in the general government to prevent fraud simply as fraud. The fundamental question was whether or not oleomargarine was a healthful, nutritious food product. If it were, then [illegible] had exactly the same right to ask a tax on butter as butter had to ask a tax on oleomargarine. If it were a healthful food product, this bill was a bill to spoliate. It was not a bill for revenue but a bill for confiscation and destruction. A German chemist had recently discovered a means for extracting saccharine from coal oil [illegible] sweetness that a [illegible] teaspoonful would change a barrel of water into syrup. What should be said of this discovery, by which, if all that was said of it were true, the cane sugar industry was to be uprooted and destroyed?

Miller appealed to the friends of the measure to see to it that the bill should not be amended in any particular, because at this stage of the session any amendment would be fatal to the bill.

Ingalls moved to reduce the tax from five cents a pound to two cents. Agreed to—yeas 32, nays 28.

Ingalls moved to insert the word "knowingly" in connection with the sale of oleomargarine.

Miller moved to lay this amendment on the table. Rejected—ayes [illegible], nays 30. The amendment was then adopted.

Ingalls moved to amend the sixth section by striking out the minimum penalty, the words "being less than 100," and the words "less than six months." Miller moved to lay the amendment on the table. Rejected—ayes 24, nays 25. The amendment was then adopted. The bill and amendments were then reported to the senate, the first question being on Ingalls's amendment to reduce the tax on oleomargarine from [illegible] cents per pound to 2 cents. This was adopted—ayes 34, nays [illegible]. The remaining amendments were adopted without question and the bill as amended was passed—ayes 37, nays 24.

The section as to penalties as amended reads as follows: Every person who knowingly sells or offers for sale, or delivers or offers to deliver any oleomargarine in any other form than in new wooden or paper packages as above described, or who packs in any package any oleomargarine in any manner contrary to law, or who falsely brands any package or affixes a stamp on any package denoting a less amount of tax than that required by law, shall be fined for each offense not more than $1000 and be imprisoned not more than two years.

Miller moved that the senate insist on its amendments to the bill and ask the house for a conference. Agreed to.

Allison called up the sundry civil appropriation bill.

Recess until this evening.

SUNDRY CIVIL APPROPRIATION BILL.

At the evening session Allison called up the sundry civil appropriation bill. The first item that was questioned was that striking out the item of $125,000 for the Brooklyn, N. Y., post office. The amendment was agreed to. An amendment was offered striking out an item of $40,000 for completing the wharf for the custom house at Charleston.

This was resisted by Mr Butler and Mr Hampton and was rejected. An amendment striking out an item of $25,000 for a custom house at Galveston, Tex., was resisted by Mr Coke and was temporarily passed over, as were also several others. An amendment striking out a proposal to enlarge the new pension building was agreed to after some remarks by Mr Hale, in which he spoke of the building as a monstrosity, unsightly and a complete abortion and failure. Other amendments, including an item of $56,000 for the inauguration of the Bartholdi statue in New York harbor, were agreed to. After disposing of seventy-six pages of the bill out of 108, the senate at 11 P. M. adjourned.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Hatch of Missouri, rising to a question of privilege, sent to the clerk's desk and had read extracts from Senator Ingalls's speech in the senate yesterday on the oleomargarine bill, in which he characterized as a shameful spectacle the support of this measure in the house under the leadership of the chairman of the committee himself engaged in the dairy business and upon which he relied for his support. Ingalls also charged that the above named chairman had personal interest in the measure.

"Mr Speaker," said Mr Hatch, "every gentleman on the floor will agree with me that that reference to me as chairman of the committee on agriculture of the house of representatives by the senator in discussion of the bill that passed this house is in violation of every parliamentary rule and in violation of every manly and decent instinct that ought to actuate a member of either of these houses. The respect which I have for this house and its members alone deters me from characterizing this [illegible] to be characterized. [illegible] I have no more personal interest in the passage of that bill than the [illegible] farmers and 50,000,000 consumers of butter in the United States. He simply utters a falsehood, and when the senator goes further and says that I have in my part of the discussion descended into the arena of vulgarities, personality and denunciation, he utters the greatest falsehood of his life, and that is the kindest thing I can say about him. I am not in the habit of descending [illegible] vulgarities and personalities. I leave that to flow from the mouth of this senator from Kansas, that womb of slander and detraction."

Mr Morrison reported back the concurrent resolution fixing July 28 as the day for the final adjournment, but pending action the house took a recess till 8 o'clock, the evening session to be for the consideration of bridge bills.

MEXICAN RECIPROCITY.

Hewitt of New York, from the committee on ways and means, reported back a resolution requesting the president to communicate to the house copies of any correspondence, reports or information in relation to the [illegible] advantages or disadvantages [illegible] to the United States by the operation of the reciprocity commercial treaty between the United States and Mexico. Adopted.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

The house then went into committee of the whole, Hatch of Missouri in the chair, on the senate amendments to the river and harbor bill.

BRIDGES AUTHORIZED.

At the evening session the house passed the following bills authorizing the construction of bridges: Senate bill over navigable waters [illegible] by the Astoria & Willamette Railway company; senate bill across the Willamette river by the Oregon Railway bridge company; across the Willamette river by the city of Salem, Oregon; across the Santiam river; across the St Augustine river, Georgia; across the Missouri river in Montana; across certain streams in Washington territory. The bill authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Mississippi river at St Louis was then called up, but as it promised to give rise to much discussion the house adjourned.

CONGRESSIONAL NOTES.

OPPOSING MORRISON'S PETITION.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Acting Secretary Fairchild and Treasurer Jordan were before the senate committee on finance this morning to oppose the adoption of the Morrison surplus resolution. In the absence of formal action by the committee no official statement of the proceedings can be given out for publication in the press. The following is gathered from various but entirely trustworthy sources as to the substance of the proceedings:

Mr Fairchild said the resolution was an effort on part of the legislative branch of the government to impose new restrictions upon the executive branch, not heretofore thought necessary, and in this view the representatives of the administration were hardly at liberty to discuss the [illegible] the proposition. He spoke on the assumption [illegible] the administration would be fully committed to and in sympathy with the policy of applying the surplus to the redemption of the interest bearing debt and retiring the debt as rapidly as a prudent administration and sound policy permitted. This being assumed, the treasury department could not see a single argument in favor of the resolution, while it could see numerous and serious objections and ill effects and embarrassments which are likely to arise from such arbitrary legislation. It was in his opinion impossible for any human being to look so far into the condition of the future as to tell in what amount and at what intervals the bonds should be called and redeemed during the next year.

Mr Fairchild responded to a number of questions by members of the committee as to the effects of the resolution, his statements indicating the belief of the treasury that the department would be greatly embarrassed and its obligations violated. Treasurer Jordan submitted a series of [illegible] and written replies to questions previously [illegible] by members of the committee, mainly of a statistical nature.

THE CROPS.

Why Corn Shows an Increased Production—Much Injury to Spring Wheat.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The statement of crop condition on the first day of July, compiled by Professor Dodge, statistician of the agricultural department, [illegible]. In this report the professor says: The area of corn is steadily increasing, with only the slightest [illegible] from foreign demand and still less from spirit manufacturers. The increase in the seven years since 1879 has been about 30 per cent, and the present area is about 76,000,000 acres. The increase is rapid in the more recently settled Western states for two reasons: first, from settlement and home [illegible] corn for wheat. Settlers find the demand for wheat fixed and little variable, except that the world's supply affects the demand [illegible], while the demand for corn is elastic and may be doubled with prices sufficiently low. [illegible] has seldom been [illegible].

Of spring wheat the report says: The condition of spring wheat has declined from [illegible] in June to [illegible] in consequence of high temperature, drying winds and want of rain. Last year the average condition was [illegible] in July, and in consequence of high temperature at a critical period fell to [illegible] at the time of harvest. It is a sudden fall, and though only three points lower than last year [illegible] would be likely to [illegible] further and [illegible] disaster. The apparent depreciation in June is 15 points, but it would be a serious error to apply that reduction to 11,000,000 bushels of spring wheat harvested, which represent the condition of 1885 at harvest [illegible] three points above the present condition. Should there be no further reduction the present [illegible] about $119,000,000 bushels. It should be understood, however, that a loss of vitality so early in the season exposes the crop to further injuries by the heat of July and August and renders it highly probable that the average condition will further decline. In this point of view the [illegible] is more serious than the reported status of the crop would make it. With favorable weather in July and August increased [illegible] may be maintained, though the chances are [illegible] against it. Making due allowance for this probability, a judicious and reasonable interpretation of the July report on winter and spring wheat would show a prospect for an increase of about 50,000,000 bushels above the official report estimate for 1885. The results of the threshing of the winter wheat and the meteorological conditions of the next two months may easily add 10,000,000 to these figures or subtract quite as large an amount.

The winter wheat area insures nearly enough for home consumption and seed. The average exportation of wheat and flour for the past five years has been [illegible],000,000 bushels. The present expectation favors a product nearly if not quite sufficient for this rate of exportation. In addition to consumption the exports of the past year have been some million bushels less than the average. The surplus will probably be ample therefore for any foreign demand likely to arise.

The distribution the past year is as follows: Estimated consumption—Food [illegible], seed [illegible]; exports from preliminary statement [illegible]; total [illegible]. Crop of 1885 [illegible]. Drawn from crop of 1884 [illegible]. The visible supply has been decreased during the year about 11,000,000 bushels, leaving about 46,000,000 bushels to come from the surplus in the hands of farmers. In view of the present surplus visible and invisible, which is still a fair average, last year's official estimate is verified at 70,000,000. Lower estimates so strenuously insisted upon by [illegible] statisticians are discredited with marked emphasis.

The condition of oats is lower than in any July report since 1881, when the yield was reduced [illegible] bushels per acre. The present condition is [illegible] against [illegible] July of that year.

The average for rye is [illegible] against [illegible] last year. It is nearly the same as in 1881.

The condition of barley is somewhat lower at the present date than up to the 1st of July in any recent year, yet the difference is not sufficient to reduce greatly the prospective yield. It averages [illegible] against [illegible] last July and [illegible] in July of the previous year.

THE TRUTH WELL PUT

Army and Navy Journal.

In his speech on the river and harbor bill, Mr Wheeler of Alabama said in answer to the statement that the press opposed it: "The papers printed within a stone's throw of where are located the headquarters of the great railroad combinations in the United States alone oppose it. The opposition to this bill does not come from the people, but [illegible] the capital stock and bonds of the railroads of the United States aggregated the enormous sum of [illegible], which [illegible] 000,000,000—a sum more than double our national debt, [illegible] admitted to be watered, representing no property whatever, and it is this effort to secure dividends upon this enormous amount of fictitious wealth that prompts and is the [illegible] of the opposition to this bill."

He showed that France had expended for constructing canals and improving rivers more than [illegible],000,000, and notwithstanding this enormous outlay, a bill was introduced in the chamber of deputies in 1878 for further systematizing and improving internal navigation at an estimated additional expenditure of $[illegible],000,000. [illegible] has expended more than $100,000,000 to improve her inland navigation. Our entire expenditure on our vast territory of river [illegible] from the beginning of the government [illegible].

A Self Made Man

Aroostook (Me.) Herald.

At the democratic state convention recently held in Bangor it is said an amusing incident occurred. They had reached that part of the programme when state committeemen were to be appointed.

Aroostook had two candidates, each anxious for the honor, but after active and persistent canvassing, when a ballot was taken it was found that each candidate had the same number of votes, and, as there couldn't be "two of him," there was no election. Another ballot resulted likewise, when one of the candidates, doubtless thinking it would be his duty to vote for the "best man," boldly broke the deadlock by voting for himself, and he was elected by a majority of one.

Immediately a Penobscot wag rushed up to the successful candidate and tendered his hearty congratulations, exclaiming, "I always did admire a self made man."

THE ANARCHISTS.

Testimony Showing the Murderous Sentiments Promulgated.

NO LEGAL QUIBBLING ALLOWED

Spies's Wild Harangue for Blood Likely to go Hard with Him in the Minds of the Jury.

CHICAGO, July 20.—This morning the officers and bailiffs were more than careful [illegible] when they admitted to Judge Gary's court room [illegible] public interest in the sensational developments in the anarchists' case is [illegible] the daily increasing crowds [illegible] for admission, the court room was crowded. When Henry Heimann [illegible] was called [illegible] the meeting [illegible] presided over [illegible]. The contents of the resolution [illegible] Spies [illegible] workingmen [illegible]

The resolutions were introduced in evidence.

Officer J. W. West of [illegible] street station [illegible] McCormick's works May 3 [illegible] Spies [illegible] McCormick's [illegible]

The state [illegible] attempted to prove the conspiracy. Spies addressed the meeting at McCormick's with a view to [illegible] the strikers [illegible]. It was [illegible] shown that after Spies addressed the crowds in most violent language he did not remain on the street, but at once came down town and wrote the famous "revenge" circular denouncing the police and saying six workingmen had been killed at McCormick's, which was untrue. Spies had no means of knowing what had occurred when he wrote the circular. [illegible] was simply to inflame the passion of the people and [illegible] he had been preaching for years.

The court allowed the witness to proceed with his narration. He said many of the mob were armed with revolvers and they at once opened fire on the police upon the latter's arrival on the scene.

[illegible] Frazer, who also was employed near McCormick's factory and who witnessed the riot, corroborated Officer West's testimony. While Spies was speaking the crowd was violent. At the conclusion of the speech some one cried out, pointing toward the factory, "Let's go and kill those damned scabs." The crowd immediately started in that direction, and Spies slid off the platform and started for the street cars.

C. J. [illegible] corroborated the testimony of the two witnesses.

A. S. [illegible], reporter on the Daily News, gave evidence on the same subject. He said [illegible] the address to the crowd Spies spoke of bombs, revolvers, etc. The witness was on the platform when Spies was speaking, but was ordered to leave, and on refusing to do so was violently assaulted.

[illegible], president of the lumber shovers' union, testified that the object of the meeting near McCormick's was to hear the report of a committee who had waited on the lumber bosses. He was to [illegible] that report, but upon arriving on the scene he found that violent speeches were being made by outsiders. He mounted the platform and counseled quiet. He [illegible] the object of the meeting [illegible] threatened to throw him off the platform if he did not keep quiet. When the crowd started toward the factory he tried to stop it [illegible] listening to the [illegible] speeches that had been made.

The defense made an objection to this testimony, but the objection was promptly overruled by Judge Gary.

Sergeant John Enright and another officer testified as to the riot at McCormick's, their testimony agreeing with that of their comrades.

Michael Hahn, a tailor, was the first witness in the afternoon. Hahn said he was at the Haymarket May 4 and was standing at the northwest corner of Desplaines and Randolph streets when the bomb exploded. A missile struck him in the back, rendering him unconscious. Hahn's testimony lay in the implication that the police had been deliberately [illegible] into a trap and then by preconcerted methods slaughtered from every side.

Theodore Fricke, business manager of the Arbeiter Zeitung, being questioned as to well known facts concerning the relation of Spies, Parsons and others to the paper, identified certain manuscripts seized after the 4th of May as being in the chirography of Spies and Schwab. They are the originals of the famous "Revenge" circular and small [illegible].

The defense objected to testimony showing that the library in the Arbeiter Zeitung office was composed of works similar to Herr Most's "Science of Revolutionary Warfare." Judge Gary overruled the objection and said: "If a man is teaching the overthrow of civil order by force, and is engaged in a conspiracy to further that end, the possession of a book or books illustrating the methods of such destruction or advocating it is competent evidence against him, the weight of which is to be determined by the jury."

Fricke testified that in the manuscript of the call for a meeting for anarchists held the night previous to the bomb throwing the cabalistic word "Ruhe" was in Spies's handwriting.

Eugene [illegible], the next witness, is the linguist who translated several articles appearing in the Arbeiter Zeitung just preceding May 4. [illegible]'s evidence was confined to a formal statement as to the care with which the translations were made. The articles were then read. They were exceptionally [illegible] descriptions of the riots at McCormick's and other labor troubles. Woven in with the narratives were typical editorials from the pens of Spies and Schwab assailing the police as murderers and advocating the prompt use of dynamite by the laboring men. When the reading was finished court adjourned for the day.

SEVERE STORM

Rain, Wind and Hail Sweep Over Wyoming and Nebraska in a Belt Eight Miles Wide.

CHEYENNE, July 20.—A severe rain, wind and hail storm began last evening near Pine Bluffs, Wyo., extending six miles east and two miles west of that place. It blew down thirty telegraph poles, caused a washout on the Union Pacific track, and wrecked several houses, but hurt no person. Both the wires and the road are in working order today.

SEVERAL PERSONS KILLED.

MINDEN, Neb., July 17.—The storm in this vicinity was very severe. There was a heavy rain, and the wind blew down the Danish church [illegible] miles south of Fredericksburg, and killed an old lady. Nine miles south of Minden the lightning struck a house, killing a German farmer, his son [illegible] years old and a daughter [illegible] years old instantly, and severely injuring another child.

ACCIDENTS.

DISASTROUS RAILWAY COLLISION.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 20.—The news of a terrible collision near Columbia, Tenn., on the Louisville & Nashville railway has just reached here. A special engine coming north ran into the Columbia accommodation going south, killing engineer Beech, of the light engine, Henry Loughlin, conductor of the accommodation, Brakeman Robert Brown, Monroe Wilson, Ralph Master and two others.

Later information shows that the engine which was coming north exploded, throwing the tender 100 feet in an opposite direction. Robertson was instantly killed by being disemboweled by a piece of iron. His watch was broken in two and had stopped at 4:20.

Section foreman Thompson was not killed as supposed, the seventh man being Whittemer, who was found with a file in his hand wedged between the locomotive and the side of the cut. Robertson got on the locomotive at Carter Creek, about twelve miles from the scene of the wreck. The train was running at the speed of forty miles per hour at the time of the collision.

RAILROAD NOTES.

NO FAST TRAIN YET.

CHICAGO, July 20.—The [illegible] met yesterday to consider the request of the Union Pacific that they should cooperate in putting on a fast limited express between Chicago and San Francisco to shorten the time between the two ports. They decided that they would make no change for the present, as it would interfere with their local trains, and business did not warrant a special train. It is probable that the Union Pacific will postpone carrying out its plan until September next, when all the Western roads are in a more settled condition.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 20.—Graham's passage through the Whirlpool rapids has convinced him that [illegible] nerve for a second trip in August [illegible]. The current is more dangerous than he imagined. He is planning to build a new barrel in which to go over the Horse Shoe falls. He will send barrels over daily for a month, and if two thirds come out all right he will make the attempt. "My present barrel would kill me in such a fall," he says.

ENGLAND.

THE CRAWFORD-DILKE SCANDAL.

LONDON, July 20.—In the Dilke case the court was crowded today. The evidence was the most interesting yet given. Mrs Crawford testified that she confessed that she disliked her husband because he was too old, that she loved Foster because he was handsome and pleasing, and that she committed adultery with Dilke for the purpose of obtaining a divorce from her husband. She spared Foster as far as possible because she knew he was about to marry. Under strict cross-examination she confessed that she had committed adultery only with Dilke and Foster, exculpating two other society men. A remarkable feature was that when Mrs Crawford was asked a question, for instance with regard to French vice, adultery, etc., she answered with the utmost calmness, "Yes, yes," and even smiled, showing that she was naturally an abandoned woman who rather gloried in her shame. Mrs Crawford spoke in soft, pleasant tones, damaging Dilke without even [illegible].

The evidence given today has produced a deep impression. Its directness, clearness and circumstantial minuteness convinced all of its truth. Dilke's refusal to deny the liaison with Mrs Crawford's mother is attributed to the [illegible] nature of the [illegible]. The conduct of Mrs Crawford and her [illegible] in court was marked by [illegible].

THE MINISTRY TO RESIGN [illegible].

BEECHER'S RECEPTION IN LONDON.

LONDON, July 20.—Adverse criticisms on the lecture delivered by Rev Henry Ward Beecher last evening appear in several papers. The Pall Mall Gazette says Mr Beecher did not have a first-class audience. The hall was not filled and the great platform was empty. The reception given to him did not realize the expectations. The applause was hearty but lacked fervency. This was partly due to the character of the audience and the high admission fees charged, being a bar to the [illegible] of the people.

RACING IN ENGLAND.

LONDON, July 20.—The race for the Scotland stakes, [illegible] 2000 sovereigns, for two year olds, took place at Leicester today. Salisbury won by a neck, [illegible] second, St Mary third. Twelve horses started and Salisbury was the favorite.

MEXICO.

HUNTING BANDITS AND REVOLUTIONISTS.

ST LOUIS, July 20.—A telegram from Matamoras, Mexico, to the Globe-Democrat says: It is reported here that Col Harlandz has captured 11 revolutionists, among them the leader, Adolfo Gonzales, whom he had hung, but the report is not given much credit. The prisoners now here have not yet been shot. Another dispatch from Santa Maria says Col Prajedis [illegible] with forty cavalry men moved up the river today. A large force of government troops arrived at [illegible] ranch yesterday. A force of cavalry is now after the revolutionists, said to be at Realistos. Cavazos captured a revolutionist named Pedro Benito. News was brought in this morning that a party of bandits was being organized in this city to take forces from this side to Mexico and join the revolutionists there. Sheriff Brito and his men are out looking for them.

RIOTERS SUPPRESSED BY MILITARY.

PARIS, July 20.—In Marseilles last evening a mob attacked the offices of the royalist papers. Gendarmes defended the buildings successfully, preventing the rioters from carrying out their purposes of sacking the premises. The mob then turned on the gendarmes and a severe fight ensued. The police and soldiers together overpowered the rioters and restored order. A number of rioters and many police and soldiers were wounded.

New Political Movement

New York Star, July 17.

The moving spirits among the 100,000 organized wageworkers in this city are actively engaged in molding into shape a political organization which they fondly hope is destined to shatter the old political bodies at the fall elections. The conviction of Theiss and [illegible], boycotters, has furnished the new party with a rallying [illegible], and has awakened a strong feeling among workingmen generally. Rev Dr R. Heber Newton and Rev Father McGlynn are most noticeable names on the roll of the new party, and as soon as the organization is perfected these gentlemen will step to the front in the general movement. Within one week a manifesto will be issued to the workingmen of New York, arraigning officeholders for their conduct toward labor, and the members of the state legislature will be attacked as well as the officers of the municipal government. The manifesto will call attention to the [illegible] bills introduced in the last legislature to increase the pay of police captains, to increase the [illegible] of sergeants and to increase the police force by 500. Judge Barrett, District Attorney Martine and the penal code conspiracy clause will be severely criticised. The workingmen party will nominate an entire ticket of candidates for board of aldermen and assembly. On the subject of the mayoralty there is a difference of opinion. One wing favors running Henry George, the political economist, while another section advocates making no separate nomination, but indorsing the candidate of the local political bodies who promise to do the most for the workingmen.

Meeting of the California Legislature in Special Session.

WILL IT ELECT A SENATOR?

Much Excitement Among Settlers in the Calispel Country Caused by the Rumored Outbreak of the Indians.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—A report has reached here that a number of the democratic members of the legislature have signified their intention of bolting and going out of the state into Nevada in the event that an attempt is made to elect a United States senator in the place of George Hearst at the special session that has been convened by the governor. They have a precedent for this in the bolting of the democrats in the Ohio legislature, who on a similar occasion placed themselves out of reach of a call of the house by going over into Kentucky.

CANDIDATES MENTIONED.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—The [illegible] dispatch from Sacramento states that the governor in an interview [illegible] on the subject of whether an attempt would be made by the legislature in extra session to elect a United States senator, replied: "If sufficient [illegible] considered that the election at this time is an extraordinary emergency it would seem probable one would be elected." He added [illegible], however, he did not anticipate any such movement [illegible] call for an extra session. Senator [illegible] says a senator will be elected. McClure [illegible] and says that even if the democrats [illegible] the assembly with a republican speaker they will not be able to elect a senator. Sargent is still regarded as first choice, with Perkins second. Creed Haymond is also mentioned as a possible candidate. The water question seems to be completely overshadowed for the time by the senatorial one. An effort will be made to have McClure introduce the bills, but it is not believed that beyond meeting today anything of importance will be done.

THE SITUATION PECULIAR.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—It is asserted by [illegible] members that Senator Hearst's term expired at noon today when the legislature was convened. It is generally stated that the members will proceed to elect a new senator on the second Tuesday from today, August 3. Several members, however, are quietly laughing over this proposed arrangement, saying that no such opportunity will be offered, as the business for which this extra session was called will be transacted and the legislature adjourned long before the legal date fixed for the election of a senator has arrived. In this case the governor would have to reappoint. The situation is peculiar.

THE LEGISLATURE CONVENES.

SACRAMENTO, July 20.—Both houses of the legislature met shortly after noon today, and after the formal opening and reading of the governor's proclamation stating the objects of the extra session, both bodies adjourned until 2 P. M. tomorrow, the assembly out of respect to the memory of the deceased assemblyman John Lafferty and the senate out of respect to the memory of the deceased senator A. B. Davis.

DEFENDING THE SUPREME COURT.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—The members of the Bar association of San Francisco held a meeting tonight and adopted the following resolutions regarding that part of Governor Stoneman's proclamation for an extra session which requests a reorganization of the state supreme court:

Resolved, That the freedom and independence of the judiciary are inestimable and should be maintained, and that the present assault on the supreme court must be met and repelled.

Resolved, That the attempt to expel the present members of the supreme court through the guise of constitutional amendment because of a decision rendered by them is fraught with danger to the independence of the judiciary and the stability and prosperity of our institutions, and merits the severest reprobation.

Resolved, That the attack on the court is directly subversive of the express guarantees contained in the constitution [illegible] to protect the independence of the judiciary in the administration of justice, and as such meets with our unqualified condemnation.

It was also decided to appoint a committee to prepare a memorial to be presented to the legislature expressive of the sense of the association with regard to the proposed reorganization of the supreme court.

HEAVY FIRE AT MADERA.

FRESNO, Cal., July 20.—The town of Madera was destroyed by fire last night. The loss is reported as very heavy. No particulars yet received.

The fire broke out at 11:30 last night in the rear of William's [illegible] on Yosemite avenue and spread rapidly to the adjoining buildings, including [illegible] hotel to the west and a row of wooden buildings to the east. A strong wind was blowing and the flames crossed the avenue, attacking the Arlington hotel, a long wooden structure, [illegible] saloon, [illegible] stable and several minor buildings, and was there checked. The town was almost entirely without facilities for extinguishing the flames, and the wonder is that the fire was checked so soon. Twenty buildings were burned. Following is the estimate of the losses and insurance: M. S. Williams $[illegible], insurance $[illegible]; H. P. Mace $1,000, insurance $500. Other losses amount in the aggregate to over $2,000, about half insured.

ARRESTED CHARGED WITH CRUELTY.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Capt H. P. Connors and First Officer Pennington of the steamer Starbuck were arrested this afternoon on charges of cruelty to sailors while at sea. The mate stated that the three men who preferred the charges had been ordered in irons on account of drunkenness. On endeavoring to execute the order one of the men drew a knife and he found it necessary to strike him. Bail was immediately furnished for both captain and mate.

PORTLAND WEDNESDAY, JULY 21, 1886.

MR EDMUNDS'S DECLINE.

The report of the steady decline of Senator Edmunds's popularity and influence will surprise no one who has watched his conduct during the last year. April 30, 1884, the republicans of Vermont at a state convention held to nominate delegates to the Chicago convention, passed resolutions enthusiastically commending Mr. Edmunds to the country for president. At their state convention held June 16 of this year there was not much enthusiasm for Mr Edmunds. There was no mention of him in the resolutions His friends were in a majority in the convention, but were afraid to present any complimentary resolutions about him, because they did not wish to reveal the strength of the opposition minority He will without doubt, be re-elected by the legislature to the senate next October, but his opponents are strong enough in numbers to denote that Mr Edmunds's personal popularity at home is waning His own alarm has been shown by his ridiculous letters to every total abstinence hobbyist in New England, by his letters to the dairy interest, assuring the grangers that he had ever been their Alonzo the Brave, and had never coquetted with that "Little Butter Cup" of fraud, the fair Oleomargarine His campaign against Cleveland was a conspicuous failure, it placed his party in an attitude that was utter folly to occupy, and his opposition to Beck's railroad attorneys bill has excited unfavorable comment from the leading journals of the country At the close of the debate June 23, when it was proposed to place the bill in the Edmunds ice-chest—the judiciary committee—Mr. Beck remarked that the bill "might as well go to the tomb of the Capulets" as to the judiciary committee, and Mr Vance said "Let us have the bill read once more I should like to take a farewell of it." Thereupon certain senators indulged in unseemly laughter But Mr. Edmunds rose in his place and said "I wish to state to the senator from North Carolina, as I happen to be chairman of the committee on the judiciary, that so far as any effort of mine can accomplish it, if this bill should be referred to that committee, the senator from North Carolina shall have the pleasure of having the bill back within eight days"

The bill was then referred, but Mr Edmunds kept it in the ice-chest about three weeks before he returned it to the senate loaded down with the amendment of Mitchell, of Oregon, which prohibits "the taking of fees by members of congress for services from any bank or other corporation which obtained its charter or any pecuniary aid from the government, from any corporation engaged in inter-state commerce by land or water, from any corporation engaged in transporting mails, and from any person engaged in the manufacture, sale, or importation of any article on which a customs duty or an internal revenue tax is levied by act of congress" The intention of this amendment was to make the bill ridiculous, and to weight it down with provisions that would insure its defeat. The original bill simply provided that it should be unlawful for any senator or representative "to accept employment as a lawyer [illegible], or payment for services of any kind, from any railroad company or any officer or agent thereof which obtained its charter, or any grant of lands, or pecuniary aid from the United States." This was all it was framed to prevent men from sitting in the senate as the hired attorneys of the great land grant corporations Edmunds and Mitchell both opposed this simple bill, and now Edmunds returns it weighted with the Mitchell amendment, which would prevent members of congress from acting as attorneys for the defendant in any case in which the United States is the plaintiff or prosecutor, and from appearing on either side in any case where a national bank is a party It would forbid them to be employed for or against any railroad company And under its provisions they could not be employed by or against any corporation or person that produces or sells any one of the thousands of articles affected by tariff duties and internal taxes. The design of Mr. Edmunds was to kill the original excellent bill by making it ridiculous with the help of Mitchell.

The most conspicuous proof of Edmunds's limitations as a statesman, however, is his civil service bill, which provides that all minor offices, now filled by the president and senate, shall be filled by the president alone for a term of four years, without requiring confirmation by the senate This bill, however, strips the president of all authority to make removals without cause Under the proposed act the president could suspend an official, but the matter would then have to be presented to one of the United States courts, and the deposed officer could present testimony to disprove any charge made against him, and, if the allegations were not sustained, would be returned to his post. No official belonging to the class described could be removed without a trial in court and an order by a United States judge This bill to a business mind is actually absurd The Chicago Tribune (Rep) fairly says of this bill

Who would undertake to manage an extensive private business with a corps of assistants removable only after a public trial and a decision by a judge? Such a system would take away necessary authority impair discipline and make it impossible to fix responsibility where it belonged It could have no better results when applied to the public service

Mr Edmunds's bill would tie the hands of the president and compel him to continue in the service persons whom he considered unfaithful or incompetent. Good administration could not be expected under such a system The president should be charged with [illegible] for his administration and then given full power to remove subordinates [illegible] results [illegible] public opinion [illegible]

The New York Evening Post says that a man with any knowledge of business [illegible] would never seriously present such a bill [illegible] four fifths of the things [illegible] competent are small [illegible] on paper and [illegible] their repetition [illegible] The result would be [illegible] and refuse to [illegible] about [illegible] being [illegible] came [illegible] And this is Mr Edmunds's [illegible] statesmanship

BULL RUN.

Twenty five years ago to-day was fought the momentous battle of Bull Run we say momentous because up to this general engagement the two sections had only feebly skirmished with each other at the East and West The victories won by McClellan in West Virginia did not altogether involve a loss of 500 killed and wounded, nor more than a half dozen regiments on either side. Bull Run opened the eyes of the North to the fact that no ninety days' war was before it, and opened the eyes of the South to the fact that while the North lost the day it was not for lack of native courage and capacity to fight. Bull Run was lost through no lack of military energy skill or courage on the part of Gen McDowell, but solely through the senile incompetency of Gen Scott, then McDowell's military superior The popular impression of Bull Run is that it was a feebly fought and poorly planned battle, in which the raw troops of the Union army took to their heels, as soon as the fight became close, thick and bloody. Gen Wm T Sherman, who commanded a brigade in this action has told its true story in his "Memoirs" from the Federal point of observation, and Gen Joseph E. Johnston, who commanded the Confederates during the whole battle, confirms Sherman's views in his "Narrative" and in an article contributed to the Century for May, 1885

The result at Bull Run was stupidly charged at the time to the influence of Greeley's famous "On to Richmond" articles, which it was alleged forced Scott to advance before he was ready. So far from doing any harm, these articles did good. we were as ready for battle as the Confederates, and if we had waited until October it is quite likely might even then have not escaped a panic. We were well prepared for an advance. McDowell had not far from 30,000 men facing Beauregard while Gen Patterson, a rich old military peacock from Philadelphia, who had been a volunteer in the Mexican war, with 18,000 men watched Johnston's army of 12,000 men in the Shenandoah valley McDowell said to Scott "I am amply able to [illegible] Beauregard alone, but I want you to [illegible] Patterson under my orders, so that [illegible] my army from a flank attack [illegible] Johnston's army" Scott replied that he would guarantee that Gen Patterson would not suffer Johnston to send Beauregard a single brigade, that he, Scott, would see to it beyond question that Patterson would fight Johnston or fall upon him the moment he attempted to decamp Scott refused to place Patterson under McDowell's orders, and McDowell left Scott with the positive assurance that he might plan his battle against Beauregard alone

Sherman and Johnston agree that McDowell's strategy and tactics were excellent that his attack was a surprise, that the Union troops fought from daylight with great gallantry and drove the Confederates steadily before them, so that at 2 P M Johnston and Beauregard both deemed the battle lost, for up to that hour Beauregard had been both outgeneraled and outfought by the Federal commander. At 3 P M Kirby Smith arrived with the last brigade of Johnston's army and burst out of the woods on the Federal flank and rear. The green Federal troops fell into a panic that would have been impossible at any subsequent period of the war, for the rebel reinforcement did not exceed 4000 men, but its sudden appearance in an unexpected quarter made it as efficient as if it had been 10,000 McDowell had done better than he had promised Scott, had not only fought Beauregard's army, but nearly all Johnston's victoriously, and had Johnston's last brigade reached the battlefield fifteen minutes later, the Confederate commander thinks his whole army would have been in full flight. Johnston and Sherman agree that the situation was about as follows: Two green armies, about equal in numbers and native courage, met, and up to 3 P. M the Federals had been victorious At this juncture, when both armies were exhausted by long marches and fighting under a July sun, the army that could first put in reinforcements of fresh troops would inevitably win It was on this principle that Grant acted at Fort Donelson. When he found one wing of his army badly whipped he ordered an immediate assault by C F. Smith's fresh division, which, striking the victorious but exhausted enemy, stormed the key of the position and compelled the surrender Johnston's army of 12,000 marched away from Patterson's army of 18,000 fine troops, reached the railroad and was whirled away to join Beauregard before the battle began, save Kirby Smith's brigade with a battery, which arrived about 3 P. M. and were dropped by the cars close to the woods which masked them until they struck our right flank and rear. That the battle was gallantly fought on both sides the losses prove. The Federals lost 1492 killed and wounded out of a total of 18,572 men and twenty-four guns, of which but 13 000 were hotly engaged, and the Confederates lost 1982 killed and wounded out of about 32,000 men engaged and forty-nine guns This was the total of the armies of Johnston and Beauregard The rebel generals Bee and Bartow were killed and Stonewall Jackson wounded in their desperate efforts to hold their ground, and General Johnston personally led forward the Fourth Alabama regiment. The Federals lost a number of gallant colonels killed, while Generals Wilcox Hunter, Ricketts and Heintzelman were wounded The failure of the Confederates to pursue our army to Washington is another proof of the bitterness of the battle and the exhaustion of the enemy. Despite the unexampled panic which ensued so feeble was the Confederate pursuit that they captured only 1216 prisoners, and these included a large number of non combatants, surgeons, hospital attendants, wagons, etc Major General Custer, served as a second lieutenant, fresh from West Point, in this battle, and he says that one good regiment, well disciplined, could have stopped the panic, restored the battle or at least prevented pursuit and saved all the cannon and prisoners The Confederate commander, Johnston, says that what saved the day to him was that his men fought on the defensive, while the Union troops assaulted, and that green troops do better on the defense than when they are exposed to disorder by the confusion of a charge, and that his men too were, as a rule, more accustomed to the use of firearms than the Northern army The courage of the two armies was about equal and Johnston thinks his green troops would have yielded to panic under a fire on their flank and rear as quickly as our own men McDowell had his victory wrested from him because Patterson had not brains enough to be vigilant and strike 12,000 men with 18,000 had not sense enough to take Johnston's army by the nose and hold it to the ground with the grip of a brave bull-dog, while McDowell whipped Beauregard. Scott's senile vanity made him refuse to let McDowell control Patterson, and so McDowell was paralyzed for the high command of which he was worthy, because of the popular odium he suffered for the defeat of Bull Run The pride of the North was wounded and never forgave him for a reverse that was not his fault, nor Greeley's, but was due to Scott who sent a foolish old fuss-and-feathers, who was wont to wine and dine Scott, to watch a man of genius. Fitz John Porter was Patterson's chief of staff, and George H Thomas commanded one of his brigades.

But Bull Run was a blessing in disguise, it shelved Scott and Patterson, and roused the North to the serious work before it. There was no time during the war when a Patterson could not, under a Scott have made the best-laid plans of Meade, Grant, Sherman or Sheridan end in disgraceful defeat. Gen Johnston agrees with Sherman that if Scott had made his promise good to McDowell by giving Patterson's 18,000 men to an energetic, pugnacious soldier, like Hunter or Sherman he (Johnston) could not have joined Beauregard without a severe battle with an army equal to his own in courage and arms, and more than equal to it in numbers

Bull Run was unavoidable It was necessary; it was the baptism by fire of the East, as Shiloh was of the West. It is always the toss of a copper between two green armies of equal numbers for the victory, and while the Union army lost the day it did not lose its honor, for its own loss of 1492 killed and wounded and the rebel loss of 1982 proves it was a bitter fight between two green armies of remarkable native courage There is no instance in modern war where raw levies on both sides fought more bravely than at Bull Run unless we except the raw levies of the French republic from 1792-94 The federals did not yield until outnumbered at the critical moment of the battle The confusion of the retreat was certain to take place with a green army Even the victorious veteran army of the French, a few days after Solferino, fled in a panic to Brescia at the sight of a few Austrian horsemen rising suddenly out of the grass to surrender The actual battle was fought long and well Greeley's "On to Richmond" was all right We were as ready as we needed to be, except to get rid of Scott and Patterson We had bitter defeats subsequently, but we never had another Bull Run panic

McDowell's fate was hard He surprised and defeated his foe, and was robbed of his victory because a superannuated veteran in Washington and another in the Shenandoah valley were suffered to spoil the success his able strategy and tactics had fairly won. Greeley was right McDowell was right and yet both carried through the war a mountain-load of obloquy for Bull Run The people and the press in their rage and humiliation sought a scapegoat, and McDowell suffered for Scott's senile vanity, egotism and inefficiency.

Bull Run had present many men who afterwards rose to great distinction on both sides. On the Union side were Burnside, Sherman, Hunter, Heintzleman Howard, Custer, Franklin, Wilcox, Wheaton, Griffin, Ayres, Ricketts Slocum, Wright, Richardson, Terry, Sykes Webb, Hunt, Averill, Barnard, Whipple and John Logan, who served as a volunteer, while on the Confederate side were Johnston, Beauregard, Jackson, Kirby Smith, Longstreet, A. P. Hill, Stuart, Hampton, Early, Rodes, Kershaw and Ewell.

It has long been a source of pain to THE OREGONIAN that it has been unable to please the alleged newspaper sometimes known as the "long felt want" [illegible] from day to day, from week to week, from month to month, that started and [illegible] holy thing employs all its feeble energies in finding fault with what appears in THE OREGONIAN An unhappy life the poor thing has, and yet it may be feared that there is nothing better before it, for really THE OREGONIAN, in order to please it, can not take for its mode the journalism of the Posey district, which the unhappy paper is essaying to introduce into Oregon Hence we suppose the lugubrious sobs must go on.

Paul Hayne, the Southern poet, is said to have called a cyclone which he saw from a safe distance, "the untranslated blasphemies of hell" A fellow named Marston, up in Eastern Oregon, who was right in the track of the cyclone of the 7th of June, has been trying his hand ever since in an effort to "translate" its "blasphemies."

Senator Kenna and his Queens.

Washington Critic.

The little story going the rounds to the effect that Senator Kenna with two pairs of queens in his hand gave the pot to Senator Dolph who held three aces on the principle that three of a kind beat two pairs has provoked the soul of the senator from West Virginia to its profoundest depths Yesterday during the executive session a brother senator approached him cautiously and by easy stages on the subject

"How is this Kenna?" he said

"How is what?" inquired Mr Kenna in reply

"Why, this little story about Dolph's three aces beating your two pairs of queens"

"Not a word of truth sir, in it," said the senator, with a snap in his eyes "I never played poker with Senator Dolph in my life I never played poker with anybody, I don't know one card from another I don't know how to play cards of any kind But sir," and his face grew determined and sinister "if Senator Dolph or any other man with three one spots in his hand thinks he can beat me when I've got four queens I'll be doggoned if I wouldn't like to see him try it once"

[illegible] was piled up with all sorts of camping [illegible] drawn by a tired dejected looking horse drew up in front of a photograph gallery on First street yesterday. The sight of so many wild looking young men with dogs and guns and a big spoon [illegible] stirring [illegible] and a [illegible] attracted considerable attention. It was soon ascertained that the party were not tramps nor gypsies but simply a party of Portland boys returning from a trip to Mt Hood. They were Ed Eisner captain, Harry Deninger, Harry Spear, Philip Eastwick, Frank Drake, Ray Morse and William M. Jett [illegible]. They left here two weeks ago [illegible] made the ascent of Mt Hood on the 17th. They had fine weather and made the ascent without trouble leaving the snow line at [illegible] A. M. and reaching the top at 11:30. They are all boys under 15 years of age and have an idea that they are the youngest party who ever went up the mountain and that they made the best time. They were accompanied by some parties from Oregon City whom they met on the way. They report that the crevasse which sometimes causes trouble is now filled or bridged by an avalanche and there are no difficulties to overcome except the climb which is as long and steep as ever. They found several cans on the summit with names etc therein but nary a cent. Some petty larceny thief has carried off the money left by visitors. The boys left a red handkerchief for a flag on the summit but said nothing about any red fire. Having arrived home safely they were having themselves photographed in a group one of which will ornament the reporters' room of The Oregonian and will be exhibited as a band of young Calispels on the warpath

UP SOUTH AND DOWN NORTH.—A somewhat novel point was raised in the demurrer to the foreclosure of a mortgage in the case of the Dundee Mortgage & Trust Investment company vs. A[illegible] cny in the United States court. The ground on which the demurrer was based was an error in describing the boundary lines of the land. The boundary was described as running east from the Willamette river a certain distance, then south a certain distance thence west to the river and thence north up the river to the place of beginning. It was claimed that if the line ran up the river it would never reach the place of beginning so that the description of the boundary was incorrect. The court held that it had official knowledge that north was not up the river and that if the line ran north it would go down the river to the place of beginning. It is very common for people to speak of going up north and down south and strangers invariably speak of going down through the Willamette valley to California. The reason is that but very few rivers in this country flow north as does the Willamette

WOULD NOT TAKE WHISKY.—About 11 o'clock yesterday forenoon as Seth Luelling was peddling fruit on College street his team a pair of lively young horses became scared by some part of the harness giving away and ran off. Between East and West Park streets a 13 year-old son of Mr Luelling was thrown from the wagon the wheel passing over his body. He was badly bruised, and thought to be fatally injured. A passing wagon took him to Dr Plummer's drug store where it was found that no bones were broken and his uncle being in town with a buggy took him home. The boy's early training is shown by the fact that when some brandy and water was offered him as a stimulant he said 'Don't tempt me I am a temperance boy.' The team ran down College to Sixth where one of the horses struck a tree, and was knocked senseless and the pole broken in several places. However all injuries were repaired and Mr Luelling was peddling fruit as usual in the afternoon. That boy is bound to become one of the prohibition leaders of this state, if he keeps up his lick.

SEVERE ACCIDENT.—Yesterday morning, about [illegible] o'clock William Thompson an old colored man who acts as janitor of the Metropolitan bank building met with quite an accident. He is a one-legged man and while sweeping the sidewalk in front of the building his crutch caught in a hole in one of the planks resulting in Thompson falling down with great force. He cried for help and several men came to his rescue and carried him to his room on the third floor. On an examination being made shortly afterward by a surgeon it was found that Thompson suffered a fracture to the bone of the partially amputated leg, a bruised arm and a severe strain of the back. He was taken to the Good Samaritan hospital for treatment. Thompson has had a painful experience with that leg. Some years ago poisonous matter was applied to some corns on his foot which did such damage that an amputation had to be made above the ankle. Subsequently another cut was found to be necessary and as the stump has never thoroughly healed Thompson may now be said to be in a bad way

PETRIFACTION.—A remarkable case of petrifaction of the human body is reported from Oswego, Clackamas county. About ten years ago the wife of John Confer an old resident of the town died and the body was buried on his farm, near some mineral springs. Recently the narrow gauge road obtained a right of way through Mr Confer's place. On running the line for the road the surveyors found that it would pass directly across the grave of Mrs Confer and that it would be necessary to exhume the body. Accordingly this was done. When the coffin was reached which was in a badly decayed condition it was discovered that the entire body with the exception of a few fingers on one of the hands, had become petrified. The form and features of the dead woman were said to be perfect and strikingly lifelike in every detail. So heavy had the remains become in being changed to solid stone that it required eight men to lift them and convey them to another burial spot.

POLICE COURT.—In the police court Charles Jackson was fined $[illegible] for bathing in the river within the city limits without a proper bathing dress. The case against James Callicut of trespassing in the Mulkey block was dismissed for want of prosecution. James Crowley and George Woods arrested for sleeping in the barn of A. H. Johnson the butcher on Twenty second street were fined $10 each or in other words will be given free lodgings in the city jail for five days. They claimed they had permission from Mr Johnson but that gentleman upon being called did not bear them out in their statement. Mary Armstrong a street walker was tried and convicted of vagrancy and sentenced to serve a term of twenty days in the city jail. The case of George Smith, of selling liquor to minors, was continued for trial until to-day also that of Lee Wa who had a fight with Lee Wee. The latter settled with the court for the part he took in the rumpus by paying $10

DIVORCE ASKED FOR.—Terence Fury a former saloonkeeper of East Portland has brought suit in the state circuit court for a divorce from Bridget Fury. They were married in the county of Roscommon Ireland January 20 1861. Plaintiff complains that on May 10 1885 defendant left him and went to California with one Harman Mumm. About two years ago Mumm who is a carpenter and who boarded with the Furys gave Mrs. Fury quite a sum of money to keep for him. On turning it [illegible] later it was not forthcoming, so Mumm had the woman arrested on a warrant in Justice Greene's court. She was held to answer and being unable to furnish the bonds required was committed to the county jail where she was held [illegible] time. It would appear that she and Mumm [illegible] subsequently made it up

A DOG'S IDENTITY.—Justice Bushwiler was called on yesterday to decide as to the identity of a dog valued at $10. A. H. Roberts was the plaintiff and [illegible] Halberstadt the defendant. It was replevin suit. Five witnesses testified that the animal certainly was Roberts's while three equally [illegible] swore the dog looked enough like [illegible] [illegible]

A [illegible] FROM [illegible].—[illegible] [illegible] down to town from the [illegible] talking about this hay [illegible] [illegible] Baled Hay [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] hardly [illegible] growing [illegible] [illegible] $10@11 per ton. [illegible] [illegible] dry [illegible] Consider the [illegible] hay [illegible] spoiled by the rains about the First, but there was no timothy to speak of down at that time. There should be plenty of hay down the Columbia this season as there was but little high water to interfere with it

GIVE THEM THE LAW.—Several weeks ago mention was made that a large number of delinquent saloon keepers had failed to take advantage of the bill passed by the common council allowing them to compromise the high license cases on the payment of $50 and costs. This was far too liberal as many of the dealers escaped the payment of license for two full quarters and others for nearly three. They still hold out however none of them having paid up since the last report was made. It would seem to be in order for the council to repeal the compromise act and instruct the city attorney to proceed and prosecute the cases

REAL ESTATE ASSOCIATION.—Articles of incorporation of the Belmont Park Real Estate association were filed with the county clerk yesterday. The business of the corporation is to purchase the tract of land known as Belmont park in sections and to [illegible] to lease occupy improve [illegible] mortgage and sell dwelling houses stores and other buildings and to build equip and operate railways. Principal office Portland Oregon. Capital stock $60 000 divided into 1000 shares. Van B. DeLashmutt, F. C. Goodin and J. Fred Clark incorporators

TO LIGHT ALASKAN WATERS.—Capt. S[illegible] U. S. lighthouse inspector for this district has received orders to proceed with the steamer Manzanita to Alaska to replace certain buoys which have been carried away and place new ones at certain designated places. She will leave here early next month and will be absent four or five weeks. As the placing of buoys can be done only by steamers rigged for that purpose the Manzanita will here after make a cruise along Alaska once a year

TRAMPS IN EAST PORTLAND.—A gang of tramps have their headquarters under the O & C company's warehouse on the east side. They spend their leisure in sleeping, patching their garments etc and during their working hours steal whatever they can lay hands on which is not too hot or too heavy to be carried off. They should be harried out and sent to work in the harvest fields. As the police of this city have no authority over them the sheriff might look after the gang

NATIONAL BANK FOR FARMINGTON.—Application has been made to the comptroller of the currency for authority to organize a national bank at Farmington, Washington territory, to be known as the "First National Bank of Farmington." D. P. Thompson, C. E. Fricks, J. E. Fricks, John B. David and Bamford Robb are applicants for the authority.

DENY THE CHARGE.—Alexander and William Strein had an examination in the police court yesterday on a charge of the larceny of $8 from Ah [illegible] a Chinaman who works in Patterson's laundry. He says they knocked him down at Eleventh and Market streets Saturday night with a chair and then took his money. The Streins admit having had some trouble with the celestial but positively deny robbing him. Judge Dement will pass on the case to-day

MEDICAL COLLEGE BUILDING.—At a called meeting of the board of trustees of the Willamette university held at Salem a few evenings since Drs F. L. Fraser, Holt C. Wilson and W. H. Watkins of Portland and Rev F. P. Tower were appointed a special committee to receive contracts for the erection of the proposed building of the medical college in this city to cost $10 000. This seems to indicate to a certainty that the building will be erected this year

NOT USED TO THE WORK.—A baker who keeps at Fifteenth and O streets hitched up a new horse to his wagon at 5 A. M. yesterday and proceeded on his rounds. The animal didn't take to the new order of things and evinced his displeasure by running away. After having thrown the baker out of the wagon on to the street and scattering the bread cake and pies all around, the horse evidently concluded that it had had fun enough for one day and quit.

ACCEPTED A POSITION.—Miss E. D. Sidney has completed her studies at the shorthand and type writing school and has taken a position as stenographer for C. H. Dodd & Co. During the spring and summer several of our large business houses have sent East for stenographers. Why do not more of our young men and women prepare themselves for this kind of work? It brings the best salary of any kind of clerical labor

GREAT FISHING.—Millard Lownsdale, Al. Raleigh Zan et al returned yesterday from a fishing trip to Tillamook county. They must have enjoyed fine sport judging from the number of large trout they brought back with them. They stopped at Keyes's place on the Trask and finding that it was still too early for good fishing in that stream went over the range to the Wilson, where they just slaughtered them by the hundreds.

ANOTHER BRICK BLOCK.—The quarter block at the southwest corner of Jefferson and First streets has been cleared of the wooden buildings and candy tent and the owner D. Mounastes, has commenced the erection thereon of a two story brick building, 100x[illegible] feet. There will be four stores in the lower story fronting on First street and the upper story will be divided into rooms for a lodging house

COMPLAINING WITNESS GETS LEFT.—Alex Raymon who caused the arrest of Annie La Motte in Justice Bushwiler's court for larceny by bailee was yesterday fined $5 for contempt of court. The case had been set for trial Monday afternoon and [illegible] of appearing, a bench warrant was issued for him and he was arrested by Constable Mead. The charge against Miss La Motte was dismissed

FOR SAN FRANCISCO.—Capt Geo D White who has had charge of Murphy Grant & Co's business in this city has wound up their affairs and leaves this morning, overland for California where he will take a position in the San Francisco house. Capt. White has made many warm friends during his stay here who regret his departure and will be pleased to hear of his future prosperity

IS SAUNDERS IN CALIFORNIA?

A Wanderer Answering his Description Seen at Sisson's, on the C. & O. Stage Road

Last Thursday Mr C. H. Shamposki a gentleman from Chicago who is making a tour of the Pacific coast with his mother arrived here overland from California and registered at the Esmond. He is strongly inclined to the belief that W. W. Saunders the escaped murderer was at Sisson's a stage station on the California & Oregon line on Friday July 9. On that day Mr Shamposki was stopping at Sisson's house. Toward noon a tall slim dark complexioned man in dirty clothes and looking as though he had "camped out" for some time made his appearance at the house. He was evidently not in good health. He had no baggage and offered no information as to the place from which he came or as to his destination. He was respectful in manner and had the appearance of a man not accustomed to tramping. Mrs Sisson who is a kind hearted woman offered him a meal but he apologizing for his dirty appearance declined to go into the dining room. However he ate dinner in the rear of the house. In the afternoon Mr Shamposki walked to the springs about two miles from the house and the wanderer accompanied him. The stranger appeared to be intelligent and never once spoke of himself or how he came to be wandering. While at the springs the wanderer asked Mr Shamposki to climb a mountain near by known as Black Butte. Mr Shamposki declined and the request was repeated two or three times. In the evening the wanderer hung around the house until o'clock and at half past 10 soon after the stage for Delta passed by the wanderer without a word started south and was not seen again

After Mr Shamposki reached Oregon he read accounts of the flight of Saunders and began to consider whether the man he saw at Sisson's was not the murderer. An acquaintance of his in this city showed him a photograph of Saunders which he said was very like the wanderer particularly the eyes the shape of the forehead and the manner in which the hair was combed. The wanderer however had a short growth of beard which the photograph did not show. Mr Shamposki thinks now that the wanderer's object in inviting him for a walk up Black Butte was for the purpose of robbing him to secure money to continue his flight.

Mr Shamposki is still registered at the Esmond but was not at the hotel last night. The story given above is as he related it to an acquaintance here who gave it to an Oregonian reporter. In the light of the Walla Walla fiasco it will not do to believe that every stranger who looks like Saunders is Saunders but it is not impossible that he was in a sparsely settled region of Northern California away from telegraph and railroads

TWO SETS OF DIRECTORS.

Law Suit Among Two Factions of the Oregon Iron and Steel Company

Suit was yesterday commenced in the state circuit court entitled as follows: The state of Oregon on the relation of S. G. Reed, plaintiff, vs Elijah Smith, C. J. Smith and I. B. Seeley, defendants.

Henry E. McGinn as district attorney, upon the information of S. G. Reed, complains of said defendants, that S. G. Reed is the owner and holds nearly one-half of the subscribed stock of the Oregon Iron & Steel company. On the third Tuesday of June, 1885, at an annual meeting of stockholders held at the banking house of Ladd & Tilton, S. G. Reed (the relator herein), W. S. Ladd, W. M. Ladd, George H. Williams and Martin Winch were duly elected, by said stockholders, directors for the ensuing year. On the 15th day of June, 1886, a meeting of the stockholders was held at the banking house of Ladd & Tilton and adjourned until July 1, 1886, at which adjourned meeting S. G. Reed (the relator herein), W. S. Ladd, W. M. Ladd, George E. Williams and Martin Winch were elected directors of the Oregon Iron & Steel company for the ensuing year, and each of said directors was certified as said director by the president and qualified, excepting W. M. Ladd, who declined to qualify. After the meeting held July 1 had adjourned some of the stockholders met and pretended to elect Elijah Smith, C. J. Smith, W. S. Ladd, S. G. Reed and I. B. Seeley directors of said company, but said meeting and pretended election of directors as aforesaid were unauthorized, uncalled for and void. The said Elijah Smith and C. J. Smith are not nor never have been stockholders in the corporation, and Elijah Smith and I. B. Seeley never have been residents of the state of Oregon. That said Elijah Smith, C. J. Smith and I. B. Seeley have intruded into the offices of directors of said company and are unlawfully exercising the same. Wherefore plaintiff prays judgment that Elijah Smith, C. J. Smith and I. B. Seeley be ousted as directors, and that W. M. Ladd, George H. Williams and Martin Winch be installed in their stead.

This suit means that the works will remain tied up indefinitely, which will not be good news to the people of Oswego. Just what the difficulty is between the S. G. Reed faction and the Elijah Smith faction cannot be learned. Smith has this interest in the iron works. The Oregon and Transcontinental company own 1500 of the 4500 shares of stock of the Oregon Iron and Steel company, and desires that operations be resumed so that the stock may have some value. Shortly after the election in which he was chosen president he informed an OREGONIAN reporter that he intended in case he was not stopped by a law suit to secure enough money to start up the works again. From what has leaked out it would seem that the Smith faction voted a block of stock which according to Reed's views they had not the legal right to vote, and this it is understood forms the basis of the suit above mentioned. It is apparent that the Ladds are with Smith in the matter.

THE EAST SIDE

Another Boat for the Albina Route—The Campy Restaurant Burglar—Brief Notes

A stock company is now being organized composed of well known gentlemen of this city, Albina and Portland, for the purpose of purchasing a steam yacht to ply between the three cities named. The capital stock will be $10,000, most of which has already been subscribed. It is stated by one of the parties interested that negotiations for a steamer are now in progress and will probably be consummated in a few days. The fare will be not not higher than 3 cents.

A SLIGHT CLUE.

The young fellow who stole $90 from the Campy restaurant on Monday evening is described as a slim built youth, about five feet high, wore a light suit, with sack coat, light hair, looks to be about 18 years of age. A fellow answering his description is said to have crossed on the O. & C. railroad ferry at a late hour on the night of the robbery. Besides the money the stolen drawer contained about 300 meal tickets just printed and stamped with the firm's name, none of which the proprietors say had been sold. Yesterday one of these tickets was presented at the counter by a well known young man, who when asked where he had got the same said he received it from a [illegible] pressman. This is a slight clue and is now being followed up by a special detective.

BAND OF HOPE PICNIC.

The children of the East Portland Band of Hope with their parents and friends will hold their annual picnic in the Portland City park on Friday next. The children will meet at their hall, corner Fifth and J streets, at 9 A. M. and march to Washington street, where they will take open cars to the park. The company have reduced the fare for the picnickers to five cents for the round trip.

NOTES.

Dr. Dav Rafferty has deferred his visit to the coast until the first of August owing to pressing professional duties.

The residence of engineer Charles McDonald was entered by burglars on Monday evening and generally ransacked. The depredators helped themselves liberally to the contents of the larder but took nothing else so far as known.

Prof. and Mrs. W. A. Wetzell, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Cummings and Miss Cummings, will leave on the outgoing steamer next Saturday for a month's visit in San Francisco. At the end of the time named Mr. and Mrs. Cummings and daughter will return to their home in central Illinois. Prof. Wetzell's visit will be a professional one. He will devote all of his time to the study of the school systems of San Francisco and Oakland with a view to elevating the efficiency of our own schools in East Portland.

Sprenger, daughter of Mrs. Murray, proprietor of the hotel, to Mr. H. [illegible], late of Chicago. The ceremony was performed at the Catholic church by Rev. Father [illegible], after which the party returned to the hotel, where a splendid dinner was served. In the evening the band gave them a serenade, and the doors were thrown open, dancing commenced and all grandly enjoyed themselves until a late hour.

THE INJUSTICE OF PROTECTION

PORTLAND, July 20, 1886.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Mr. Meeker in his letter favoring protection says that "had we these manufacturing industries in our midst we would not be exporting the fat of the land in the shape of wheat to foreign countries." Well, we have had a protective policy for a quarter of a century, and why haven't we the manufactories here this long time? Were they not protected enough? Does he want higher protection for some particular industry that he wishes to embark in? If protection insists on manufactories so very much, why has not he and other protectionists built them up under our protective tariff? He says they are much needed, then let him build. [illegible] why he has not stepped in to supply the need? There is no popular delusion like this protective delusion. It is like the fatal mirage of the desert. It shows running brooks and cooling shade in the distance to the weary traveler only to draw him further and further into the parched desert. It is the most unjust thing ever perpetrated under the sanction of law. It is the robbery of one class to the enrichment of another. And, to be effective it must necessarily be unjust, and it is effective only in the degree that it is unjust. If it could be arranged as in justice it ought to be, if we have protection at all, so that all classes were protected equally, then no one would want protection, no one would need protection. If Mr. Meeker, engaged in one industry, was protected to the exact amount of $1000 per annum, and had to pay for the protection of other industries the exact amount of $1000 per annum, he would not care one cent for protection. Protectionists only want protection when it is unjust and not when it is just, if such a thing as just protection be possible. X.

WHY HE ISSUED IT

The President's Resolve to Check the Political Activity of Office-Holders

Washington special, July 14.

The president's proclamation to federal office holders issued to-night is the result of a necessity that has become manifest since the nominating conventions of this year began to assemble. For some months the president has been overwhelmed with written and verbal complaints of the power of federal patronage being thrown in local conventions to influence results, and what is worse the federal office holders have been pushed forward to carry local nominations. Democratic representatives and senators having friends who are candidates for state or national offices have been putting their appointees into convention to whoop [illegible] and bulldoze for the befriended candidate, and as a result the independent candidate has no show. Long and loud wails have come in from good democrats who feel that the administration should protect them against the heels of their own [illegible], and that they should not be shut out of the elective as well as the appointive offices. It has long been known that the president took a strong view of the proprieties in this respect. Not long ago a democratic senator called to congratulate the president upon an appointment he had made of an active political worker to a prominent office, and observed that the latter would make things hum in the next campaign now that he was in office. The president replied somewhat warmly:

"I have reason to believe that so and so is an honest capable man and I have no doubt he is a valuable party manager, but you would better warn him that if I catch him mistaking his place and trying to run conventions as he has been doing in the past I will flip him out in a hurry. I'd bounce him as quick as I would a republican."

The convention that renominated Mr. Holman for congress was run by office-holders, nearly every man in the district who owed his appointment to Mr. Holman being present and actively at work. The Cincinnati Enquirer, democrat, reports that at the first congressional convention held in Ohio this year, at Coshocton, the other day, twenty-four office holders were present as delegates and dictated the action of the body, and at every other convention so far held similar scenes have been witnessed. It remains to be seen what scheme for evading this order will take its place.

When John Lord, the historian, was examined for ordination he was asked by a disciple of Dr. Emmons, "Are you willing to be damned for the glory of God?" His answer came with the force of an unexpected cannon shot: "No, but I am willing you should." He did not get ordained.—School Journal.

"Can any of you tell me why Gottfried Muller is not at school?" said a teacher to her scholars a few weeks ago. Up went a little hand like a jumping jack. "Well?" was the interrogative response. "Please ma'am," answered a little boy with a rapidity that almost took away his breath, "his father's dead and Uncle Pete's got the job." It is not perhaps necessary to say that the relative referred to was an undertaker.—Boston Budget.

MARKETS BY TELEGRAPH

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 20.—Governments were quiet and steady to day. New York & New England still continues to be the leading card at the stock exchange. Louisville & Nashville assumed a prominent position both as to activity and strength and advanced sharply. The reduction of rates of sterling exchange was looked upon as an indication of an increase of the purchases of securities in this market, to say nothing of the cessation of gold exports, and talk is heard of a movement of the latter metal to this country in the near future. The general list continues dull as of late. The market was firm at the opening. The net result of the day's business is an advance for everything on the active list, Louisville & Nashville and New York & New England both gaining 1⅛, and Erie preferred 1¾.

The Mail and Express says: The mining market to-day showed a continued dullness. Sales: Rappahannock 13c, Caledonian Black Hills 85c, Bodie $1 15, Sierra Nevada 85c, California & Virginia $1 45, Bulwer 33c, Lacrosse 9c, Oriental & Miller 6@5c.

STOCK SHIPMENTS BY THE SHORT LINE

Salt Lake (Utah) Journal.

Eastern cattle buyers and commission men are beginning to order trade along the Oregon Short Line this season. Nick J. Bason has bought 5000 head of beef cattle in the Malheur and Harney Lake country, to be delivered between August 15 and October 1. He is paying $20 to $21 per head for good beeves and is buying for Mr. Mundey of Chicago. The Home Land & Cattle company has finished shipping eight trains [illegible] of cattle loaded at Huntington for the new Northwest territory of Canada and ten cars of beef cattle were selected from [illegible] which brought $[illegible] in Chicago the last of June. These cattle were taken from the range and averaged [illegible] pounds for the steers and 1000 pounds for the cows in Chicago. The steers brought $[illegible] per head and the cows $31 50. Among the leading shipments either contracted or already gone over the Oregon Short Line are 4000 steers sold by Todhunter & Devine from their Malheur range to Matt Ryan, Thomas S. Arnott and 1400 steers sold to [illegible] of the Warbonnet Cattle company, also 600 head of stock cattle principally cows to Col. O. W. Wheeler of Camas prairie from the same parties; 3500 to 4500 head sold by Dooley & Kirkham of Walla Walla to [illegible] Cattle company from their Willow creek and Malheur range. Several smaller bands have been disposed of and a lively shipping season is anticipated by the Oregon Short Line, which is running its live stock express trains at thirty five to forty miles an hour running time, making the net time schedule fully twenty five miles per hour. This route is becoming the most popular live stock thoroughfare from the Northwest and is rapidly building up a good stock traffic from the territory tributary to the Northern Pacific on the north and the Central Pacific on the south. The estimate for this season places the shipments at 60,000 head horses and cattle. The range of prices on stock cattle has been $1[illegible] to $1[illegible] for ones, $22 for twos and $[illegible]8 to $30 for threes.

"All Men are Liars."

Said David of old. He was probably prompted to make the above remark after trying some incurable catarrh remedy. Had he been permitted to live until the present day and tried Dr. Sage's Remedy he might have had a better opinion of mankind. We claim that no case of catarrh can withstand the magic effects of this wonderful medicine. One trial of it will convince you of its efficacy. By druggists, 50 cents.

A little 12 year-old boy paid a visit to a [illegible] street family last week. Next door lived a lady a few years ago, who called on the visitor and struck an acquaintance. On his return home his mother asked: "Who is that little boy visiting next door?" "Well, I don't just know who he is, mamma," replied the little fellow, "but they call him John, and he is not John the Baptist." And he looked up in surprise because his mother smiled.—Elmira Gazette.

Remarkable Escape

John Kuhn of Lafayette, Ind., had a very narrow escape from death. This is his own story: "One year ago I was in the last stages of Consumption. Our physicians gave my case up. I finally got so low that our doctor said I could not live twenty four hours. My friends then purchased a bottle of DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS, which benefited me. I continued until I took nine bottles. I am now in perfect health, having used no other medicine."

We might claim a population of 150,000, but why should we tell a fib for a little matter of [illegible] people?—Minneapolis Tribune.

Delays are Dangerous

The time to take a medicine is when nature gives her first warning. That tired feeling is often the forerunner of serious disease, which may be warded off if you attend to yourself in time. Don't wait till your system is all run down and you are obliged to stop work, but take Hood's Sarsaparilla now. It will purify, vitalize and enrich your blood, create an appetite and tone the digestive organs, cure headache, biliousness and dyspepsia, rouse and regulate the liver and kidneys and give strength to the whole body.

Having been afflicted with a complication of disorders, the result of impure blood, I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and the result was perfectly satisfactory.—MRS. J. BARTON, New Haven, Ct.

Has been established entirely on its merits and will increase the more the Oil is used. It is not a compound. It is simply a product from one source and thoroughly pure, possessing properties which engineers and machinists will appreciate after giving it the severest tests.
